Maiden Voyage launches COVID-19 Business Traveller Safety eLearning

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Maiden Voyage, specialists in diverse traveller safety announced today the launch of its new COVID-19 Traveller Safety eLearning for Business Travellers.

As some organisations start to reintroduce business travel employers are looking for advice on how to best support those who are required to travel as part of their jobs, many of whom have concerns about catching COVID-19 whilst travelling.

Maiden Voyage worked with airlines, airports, hotels and other travel suppliers and travel security experts to develop the comprehensive online learning module.

The eLearning provides business travellers and employers with practical advice to ensure the traveller's mental and physical wellbeing during the pandemic, whilst also protecting their colleagues and loved-ones. Having completed the module, travellers will have a better understanding of what to expect during the end-to-end journey as well as to identify and mitigate risks along the way. The eLearning modules also come with a Managers Assistance Handbook to help employers to support the mental, physical and practical needs of their employees whilst also safeguarding their organisations.

Of the launch, Carolyn Pearson, CEO said "Whilst global travel remains volatile, it is only a matter of time before some modicum of business travel resumes and employers need to be prepared in order to protect their business travellers in this 'new normal'.

"Duty of care has never been so prolifically at the front of minds for employers and we believe that our new module will provide a simple solution to the challenges around global mobility".

The eLearning comes in a variety of formats so that it can plug easily into travel apps and online Learning Management systems and comes with reporting and analytics to allow employers to mandate the training if needed.
